Mayan Celebration For AltaMed Gala

By Teresa Gordon

While some interpret the ancient Mayan calendar as predicting doom for 2012, others instead see it as a time of transformation from one life to the next. AltaMed Health Services, a non-profit community health care provider for the underserved, celebrated this positive interpretation at its "New Era"-themed gala at the Beverly Hilton Hotel March 9, reflecting Mayan traditions and AltaMed's own expansion.

"At a time when California is suffering an economic crisis, we faced funding cuts to two important programs, for teen pregnancy and parenting and adult day health services," said AltaMed President and CEO Castulo de la Rocha. "But we have continued to grow." Through efforts in the private sector, the 42-year-old non-profit has added doctors, hours, services and locations in the past year. AltaMed is the nation's largest independently federally qualified community health center in the United States, with 44 delivery sites in Los Angeles and Orange Counties with more than 800,000 patient visits.

Honorees at the gala included Bank of America Merrill Lynch executive Raul A. Anaya, who won the group's Mentor Award for providing professional and personal guidance to the underserved for health care.

Another honoree, Jack Cline, Jr., senior vice president of Lee & Associates, met de la Rocha at a neighboring gym 12 years ago and was impressed with his commitment. At the gala, Cline discussed his personal journey to become a vegetarian and has since worked to champion AltaMed's programs to end childhood obesity.

The gala crowd of over 800 were delighted by costumed Mayan dancers and chunks of raw Mexican chocolate. Grammy Award winning singer Pepe Aguilar was the surprise performer and had many crowding the aisles for his romantic serenades.

"He knows about our programs and just had to come," said Zoila Escobar, AltaMed's Vice President of Strategic Development and Community Support and President of the AltaMed Foundation. "He wants to visit some of our centers."

Percussionist Louie Cruz Beltran and his orchestra filled the dance floor later at the event, which raised $500,000 for health care programs.

"AltaMed will never turn anyone away," confirmed de la Rocha.

From Ashes to Dreams; My Life, My Story Authored by Alberto Mercado

A family tragedy left a mother and six small children struggling to get by. With no outside help forthcoming, the family pulled together, with each member playing his or her own role in daily life in an effort to survive. But their hardships in contrast to many of the families around them instilled a desire to succeed. The story is told through a letter written by one of the children to his deceased father in an effort to stop the nightmares that continued to haunt him well into his adult life. ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Alberto Mercado was born in Puerto Rico to a family of modest means. A subsequent family tragedy left the family fatherless and struggling to get by. With no outside help forthcoming, the family pulled together, with each member playing his or her own role in daily life in an effort to survive. However, their hardships, in contrast to many of the families around them, instilled a desire to succeed. Alberto strove valiantly to improve his lot, initially frustrated by financial hardships and other factors. He had long dreamed of escaping to the United States, the Land of Opportunity. Given the chance to realize this dream, he has never looked

Alberto has established a long career in medical service. He has recently explored a love of photography, a pursuit which has brought him some press coverage and several successful exhibitions. In writing a brief self- introduction for one of his exhibitions, the seeds of his first book, "From Ashes to Dreams; My Life, My Story" were planted. His brief biography generated strong emotional responses from some readers who encouraged him to complete writing his story. The result is not a biography but is inspired by many actual events in Alberto's life.

These childhood years forged in Alberto, a man who appreciates family and friendships. He remains very close with his family and, as a friend of his, I can attest that Alberto has established and tries to maintain annual traditions that reunite his friends - even when it seems that everyone is caught up in their own individual world. I and his other friends appreciate this effort. The events in this book may or may not resemble those of your own life but I'm sure that you can find within its pages something of value, and hopefully it brings you a newfound appreciation for that intimate circle of family and friends that makes your life as rich as it is.

—Brad Lisak

Since the release of his first book, Alberto has written two more books; "Annabel; Finding Her Way Home" which is a continuation of his first book, and "The House of Clara Martin" which was just released this in March 2012.

"I am excited to write these books because I want our Latin American community to be proud of me and I want the world to know that we as a Spanish community can be good authors." Alberto said.

Thus far, "De Cenizas a Sueños; My Vida, My Historia" is the only book also available in Spanish. The others will follow soon.
